3	1/22/2016	2/29/2016	On the day of the inspection observation revealed that a staff person left the infant room and joined the toddlers for approximately 15 minutes which left 4 babies alone in their cribs either sleeping or resting. 3	1/22/2016	2/29/2016	The center has placed a curtain between the two infant areas which blocks the view of the children while they are sleeping. If a curtain is going to be used to block out the light for nap time, then either a staff person must be in the room supervising the sleeping children or a monitoring system which ensures supervision of all of the children in that room. 5	1/22/2016	2/29/2016	On the day of the inspection there was one staff person with 5 infants. Four of the infants were in their cribs sleeping or resting. There is no nap time ratio for children under the age of 12 months and awake ratios must be maintained at all times. The only exception to that rule is that all children under the age of 12 months must be asleep in order for the nap time ratio of 1:10 (which is used for children 12 months-2 1/2 years of age) to be utilized, and staff must be within the building and readily available to meet awake ratios once the children are waking up. When the staff person was asked why the child was sitting in the high chair and not doing anything, she replied that the child had been scratching other children and was put there to stop the behavior and had been there for five minutes or so. Children cannot be restrained as a form of discipline. If the center is utilizing time out as a discipline method, the time the child is in time out cannot exceed their age in minute form.	Delete
26	1/22/2016	2/29/2016	On the day of the inspection a staff person sent a 3 year old child into the toddler classroom because he was acting like a baby. The same staff person then repeated the same statement to the the staff in the toddler room loud enough for the the other children in the class to hear her. 169	6/6/2016	1/5/2017	The center enclosed an open area in front of their playground. This space is both solid and grassy. The extension is only several feet from a parking space in an active parking lot. The area is to be used by the entire center, but mainly for the infants and toddlers. As previously discussed with the sponsors when the center was opened, the extension will require vehicle barriers to keep the area safe from vehicular traffic. Consult with the local officials and file and follow locals codes and ordinances prior to and during the installation process.	Delete
